

The Engineering Institute of Canada

2021 Award Citation

EIC Fellow

Sherry Trenholm

Nominated by the Canadian Society for Civil Engineering

Sherry Trenholm is currently the Director of Municipal Facilities for the City of Moncton and has maintained an outstanding record of accomplishments throughout her career. Sherry is well-known on the regional, provincial and national levels and beyond for her excellent work, countless hours of volunteer time and exhaustive contribution to her profession, several professional associations, various community organizations and charitable events.

She has gone on to inspire countless colleagues and community members in using her engineering training, communication and leadership skills, as evidenced by the many honors and awards she garnered over the course of her career. She is a Fellow of CSCE and Engineers Canada, the recipient of the Agnes Amelia Blizzard National Award (YWCA), James A. Vance Award (CSCE), Support of Women in Engineering Award (Engineers Canada and APEGNB), Citizenship Award (APEGNB), Women at Work Distinction Award (YWCA) and the Muriel Ferguson Award (Greater Moncton Chamber of Commerce), only to name a few.

Sherry truly embodies the values of a role model with her relentless hard work and devotion to the engineering profession and her community. She sets a firm example of the role an engineer can play inside and outside the profession's sphere in today's society.

Ladies and gentlemen, and Mr. President, please welcome Sherry Trenholm as a Fellow of the Engineering Institute of Canada.
